PEOPLE & OPERATIONS

Good site engineers rarely quit for the salary.

Four reasons I keep seeing, and a fix for each.

REASON ONE

Nobody told them what "good" looks like.

THE FIX

Write down what a great week looks like for the role, and share it.

01

REASON TWO

Every day is firefighting, never planning.

THE FIX

Protect 30 minutes every morning for planning. Calls can wait.

02

REASON THREE

No path from site engineer to project lead.

THE FIX

Show the next role, and exactly what it takes to get there.

03

REASON FOUR

The only feedback is when something breaks.

THE FIX

Every Friday, name one thing that went right, and who did it.

THE SHORT VERSION

People join a firm. They leave a manager.

What has kept your best people with you?
